Mum What are you doing, Ryan? You normally go out with Martin, Tommy, Maddy and Beth on Saturdays.

Ryan I'm talking to them right now, Mum!

Ryan We always go out together on Saturday afternoons.

The present simple, present continuous and past simple

 We use the present simple to talk about habits and routines.

You normally go out with your friends on Saturdays.

Or things that are always true.

We go out together on Saturday afternoons.

We often use the present simple with adverbs of frequency like sometimes, never, usually, often, most days.

I sometimes play volleyball in the park.

We use the present continuous to talk about what we are doing now.

I'm talking to them.

Or with time expressions like now, right now, at the moment.

I'm talking to them right now, Mum!

We use the past simple to talk about actions that are finished. We often use it with time expressions like this morning, yesterday, last year, at 10 o'clock.

We went to the park yesterday.

1 Making things

The present perfect (1): ever and never
The present perfect (2): for and since

Ryan We've decided to build a doll's house for Julia. Dad's given us some wood. Have you brought the paint, Martin?

Martin Yes, I have.

Martin Do you want to help us, Tommy? Have you ever made a doll's house?

Tommy No, I haven't. I've never made anything out of wood!

The present perfect with ever and never

 We use the present perfect to talk about actions in the past that are still true now.

We've decided to build a doll's house for Julia.

We make the present perfect affirmative with have + past participle. We normally use the short form of have, especially in conversation.

Dad's given us some wood.

The past participle is usually the same as the past simple form of the verb, but some verbs are irregular. There is a list of common irregular verbs on page 96.

The word ever means 'in your life up to now'. We can use it with the question form of the present perfect to ask about a person's life experience.

Have you ever made a doll's house?*

We use never in the present perfect to talk about something that we have not done in our life up to now. We always use an affirmative verb with never.

I've never made anything out of wood.

1 Write sentences. Use the present perfect.

1 We / decide / to make a doll's house.

We've decided to make a doll's house.

A TOY MUSEUM

Cara White and her dad William have an unusual hobby. They are toy collectors and they are the owners of a toy museum near London, England.

William has been a toy collector for more than 20 years. He started collecting toys in 1986 when he bought a teddy. Cara and William have had their museum since 2000. They have collected a huge number of toys and lots of people have visited since it opened. They have dolls and dolls' houses, teddy bears, trains, books and toys from TV programmes and films. Visitors also bring toys to the museum, and in 2002 Cara and William opened a museum shop.

The present perfect with for and since

We can use the present perfect with for to talk about how long something has lasted.

We use for with a period of time. The period of time can be long or short e.g. 20 years, a week, four hours, three minutes.

William has been a toy collector for more than 20 years.

This means that William started to collect toys more than 20 years ago and he still collects toys today.

We can use the present perfect with since to talk about when something started if it is still happening.

We use since with a starting point. The starting point can be any time e.g. 1998, last year, in March, half-past nine.

They have had their museum since 2000.

This means that William and Cara started the museum in 2000 and they still have it today.

7 Complete the sentences. Use for or since.

- William and Cara have had the museum for nearly 10 years.
- William has collected toys _____ 1986.
- Cara's liked collecting toys _____ she was a little girl.
- Large numbers of people have visited every year _____ 2000.
- Visitors from all over the world have brought toys and games to the museum _____ many years.
- The museum has had a shop _____ 2002.
- People have given toys to the museum _____ it opened in 2000.

8 Look at the pictures. Write sentences with the present perfect.

9 Write sentences. Use the present perfect.

1 be / at this school / for / four years

I've been at this school for four years.

3 know / my best friend / for / five years

5 have / my favourite toy / since / last year

2 study / English / since / I was six

4 live / in my house / for / eight years

6 play / volleyball / since / last summer

The present perfect or past simple?

 We use the present perfect to talk about something that happened very recently.
The lights have gone down.

We also use the present perfect to talk about an action in the past that is still true now.
I've been excited all day.

We also use the present perfect to talk about events from our life that have happened up to the present time. It doesn't matter when they happened.

He's been in lots of plays.

We use the past simple to talk about actions that started and finished in the past. We often say when they happened.

I saw Dad act in his first play 20 years ago.

Detective Where were you at twelve o'clock last night?

Suspect You've already asked me that question.

Detective And you haven't answered it yet.

Suspect I'm nervous. I haven't talked to a detective before.

Detective Well, you've just talked to me, and I'm a detective. So now you have talked to a detective.

The present perfect with already, yet, just and before

Already, yet, just and before can all mean 'at some time up to now'. We often use them with the present perfect.

We use yet to talk about something we expect. It often comes at the end of the sentence. We only use yet in questions and negative sentences.

You haven't answered it yet?

Have you answered it yet?

Before means 'at any time up to the present'. It often comes at the end of the sentence.

I haven't talked to a detective before.

We use already to say that we are surprised that something has happened sooner than we expected.

You've already asked me that question. OR You've asked me that question already.

Just means 'very close to the time now'. We can use it to talk about something that has happened very recently. The affirmative form is subject + have/has + just + past participle.

You've just talked to me.

We form questions with have/has + subject + just + past participle.

Have you just talked to him?

Comparative and superlative adjectives

Comparative adjectives

We use comparative adjectives with than to compare one person or thing with another.

Short adjectives have one or two syllables. Loud has one syllable. Pretty has two syllables.

loud → louder pretty → prettier

We don't change the ending of adjectives with three or more syllables. We put more before the adjective instead.

This book is more interesting than that book.

The opposite of more is less. We use less in the same way as more.

That book is less interesting than this book.

Superlative adjectives

We use superlative adjectives to compare a person or thing with a group of other people or things.

loud → the loudest pretty → the prettiest

We don't change the ending of adjectives with three or more syllables. We put most before the adjective.
the most beautiful

The opposite of the most is the least. We use the least in the same way as the most.

the least beautiful

As ... as ... and not as ... as ...

If two people or things are equal we use as ... as .... When they are not equal, we say not as ... as ....

This band's as loud as the last band! (Both bands are equally loud.)

London is not as big as Cairo. (Cairo is bigger.)

Mother's Day

Mother's Day in England started more than 400 years ago. Young men and women went home once a year to visit their families and show their love for their mothers. Now people celebrate Mother's Day all over the world, including in Greece, Iran, China, Japan and the USA. Sons and daughters usually send a card or some flowers and a present to their mothers.

People who think that flowers are too expensive or who haven't got enough money to buy a present can make something instead. The ingredients to make a cake, for example, are cheap enough for children to buy. Cakes aren't too difficult to make and they're good enough to give to any mother.

Too and enough

 We can use enough before nouns or after adjectives. It shows that something is as much as we need.

*There's enough cake for everyone.
It smells good enough to eat!*

We can use too before adjectives. It shows that something is more than enough.

That hat is too big for you!

8 Complete the sentences. Write too or enough.

Ryan We were walking home when we found a bag of rubbish.

Dad I saw something good! I was cycling home when I saw a new house. I think it's an eco home.

The past continuous and the past simple

We often use the past continuous with the past simple. The past continuous talks about a longer action which started first.

We were walking home when we saw a bag of rubbish.

The past simple talks about a short action which happened during the longer action.

We were walking home when we saw a bag of rubbish.

We can make two actions into one sentence by connecting them with when.

I was cycling home when I saw a new house.

We can make either the past simple or the past continuous part of the sentence into a question. We use the matching short answer.

Were you walking home when you saw a bag of rubbish? Yes, we were.

When you were walking home, did you see a bag of rubbish? Yes, we did.

1 Complete the sentences. Use the past continuous of the verbs in brackets.

An eco home

From the outside, Simon and Alice's house looks normal. But on the inside it's very different – their Mum and Dad have changed it since they moved in. Why? They wanted to help the environment and waste less energy. Also the energy bills used to be expensive and they wanted to save money.

These are some of the changes they've made: Simon and Alice's family used to use a lot of electricity. Now they get energy from solar panels on the roof. They used to throw a lot of rubbish away. Now they recycle lots of rubbish.

The old owner of the house didn't use to grow vegetables. Now there are fruit trees and vegetables growing in the garden.

Used to

We use used to to describe past situations or habits. These actions or habits are finished. We do not do them any more.

The energy bills used to be expensive.

We use used to + base form to make the affirmative form.

We used to spend a lot of money.

We use didn't + use to + base form to make the negative form.

The old owner didn't use to look after the garden.

We make questions with did + subject + use to + base form. We make short answers with did or didn't.

Did they use to use a lot of energy?*

Yes, they did. / No, they didn't.

Will and won't
The present continuous with future meaning

Ryan Do you think the earth will be a better place in the future?

Mrs Casey Yes, it will. The streets will be cleaner.

Ryan What will we do differently?
Mr Casey We won't drive big cars that use lots of energy and we'll recycle more glass and plastic.

Will and won't

We can use will to talk about the future to make predictions. A prediction is something we think will happen. We use the base form of the verb after will.

The streets will be cleaner.

We often use the contracted form 'll after pronouns.

We'll recycle more glass and plastic.

We use the subject + won't + base form to make the negative.

We won't drive a big car.

We use will + subject + base form to make questions. In affirmative short answers, we always use the full form will.

Will we do anything differently?
Yes, we will. OR No, we won't.*

1 Complete the text. Use 'll, will or won't.

In the future ...

Eco holidays

Holidays are good for you!
This year, all these people plan to have holidays that protect the environment.

We're going on a walking holiday.

We're riding our bikes from home
to our uncle's house.

He lives more than 400 kilometres away!

We aren't flying – we're travelling to Germany by train.

The present continuous with future meaning

 We can use the present continuous to talk about things we have arranged to do in the future. We use it most commonly for personal plans.

We aren't flying. We're going on a walking holiday. We're riding our bikes.

8 Circle the present continuous verbs that are about the future. Write the base forms below.

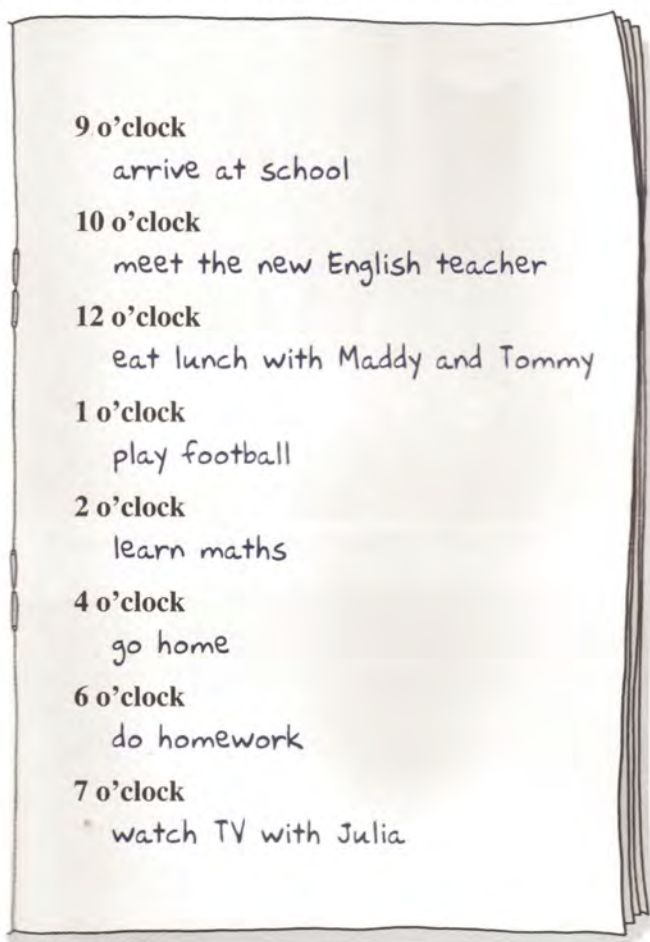

I'm William. I'm twelve and I'm a pupil at Fenton School. I'm studying all the usual subjects: English, maths, history, and so on. We're going on our holiday next week and we're doing something different. My Dad and I are travelling to my grandma's house, but we aren't driving by car. It usually takes us an hour to get to my grandma's house. Next week it will take us longer because we're walking there. I like walking and so does my dad. We're leaving our house at 8 o'clock in the morning. We're walking all day, but I'm not giving up!

Ryan Well, I'm going to see the reptile house. They're going to feed the snakes soon.

Martin I'm not going to visit the reptile house. I'm going to see the lions.

Be going to for plans and intentions

We can use be going to to talk about plans or intentions. We have already decided what to do.
I'm going to visit the elephant house. I'm going to see the reptile house first.

We use be going to + base form. We often use the contracted forms 'm, 're and 's in the affirmative and negative but not in questions.

They're going to feed the snakes soon.

And I'm not going to visit the reptile house.

What are you going to do first?

We don't use contractions in affirmative short answers with be going to.

Are you going to visit the reptile house first? Yes, we are.

1 Look at the picture. Write R if it is Ryan's plan and M if it is Martin's plan.

Reported speech

 Sometimes we want to tell somebody what another person said. We call this reported speech. We can report another person's words or our own words.

We usually change the tense of the verb from the present to the past, like this:
present simple → past simple present continuous → past continuous

Direct speech

It's broken.
I'm not staying at home.

Reported speech

The doctor said it was broken.
Tommy said he wasn't staying at home.

In reported speech we usually need to change the pronoun.
You have to go to school. → Dad told me I had to go to school.

Shawston News

Swimming pool closed

Shawston swimming pool was closed after a young swimmer had an accident during a school visit last week.

Fiona Thompson, aged 13, hurt her head when she dived to the bottom of the pool. Her swimming teacher looked after her and gave first aid before the ambulance arrived to take Fiona to hospital.

Fiona told me she was resting in hospital and said she was happy about going home the next day. Fiona's Mum and Dad told me they were grateful to the teacher who helped her. Head teacher of Fiona's school, Oliver Macdonald, said the accident showed how important it was to have first aid training.

By Steven Ross

Said and told and time words in reported speech

Said and told

We can use both said and told in reported speech. We use said if we do not say who the person was talking to.

Fiona said she was resting in hospital.

We use told when we mention who the person was talking to. We usually put a name or an object pronoun after tell.

Fiona told Steven Ross she was resting in hospital. Fiona told me she was resting in hospital.

Remember the object pronouns are me, you, him, her, it, us, you, them.

Time words in reported speech

When we use reported speech, time words also change.

Direct speech Fiona said, 'I'm happy about going home tomorrow'.

Reported speech Fiona said she was happy about going home the next day.

Tommy It's Ryan's birthday today. If we buy some biscuits, we'll have something to take to his party this afternoon.

Beth Ready-made biscuits are full of sugar and additives. If we take a home-made fruit cake, we won't have to eat unhealthy food.

Maddy Good idea. We'll have time to make a cake if we go home now.

First conditional

 We use the first conditional to talk about things that will happen in the future. We use it when one action depends on another action.

If we buy these biscuits, we'll have something to take to his party this afternoon.

A first conditional sentence has two parts (called clauses). We use a present tense verb in the if-clause and will or won't + base form in the will/won't-clause.

if-clause	will/won't-clause
If we buy some biscuits,	we'll have something to take to his party this afternoon.

We can also put the will/won't-clause first.

will/won't-clause	if-clause
We'll have time to make a cake	if we go home now.

When the if-clause is first, we add a comma. When the will/won't-clause is first, we don't add a comma.

If we go home now, we'll have time to make a cake.

We'll have time to make a cake if we go home now.

1 Underline the if-clauses.

Healthy children eat healthy food

If you eat healthy food, you will be strong and have lots of energy. Healthy food doesn't have much sugar, salt or fat and it isn't made with additives. If you eat well, you won't get ill very often and if you have lots of fruit and vegetables every day, you'll get all the vitamins you need to grow. But you'll get tired easily if you eat too much junk food, and if you're tired, you won't do as well at school.

2 Match 1–6 with a–f.

- 1 f If you eat healthy food,
- 2 _____ If you go to bed late,
- 3 _____ If you break a leg,
- 4 _____ If you don't eat too much sugar,

- 2 If you don't go to the cinema, you won't / don't see the film.
- 3 If you add too much salt, the food will taste / is tasting bad.
- 4 If my sister wants to, we / we'll go to the park.
- 5 The holiday will be great if the weather will be / the weather's good.
- 6 If Tony doesn't play for the team, he'll be / he's being unhappy.
- 7 We won't go shopping if you won't / don't want to.
- 8 We'll go outside if it isn't / it won't be raining.

An interview with TV chef ANTON LE GASTON

Q: Anton, you travel all over the world for your TV programme. Where are you going next?

A: Next week I'm going to England and then to the USA and Canada.

Q: That's a lot of travel. What will you do if you get tired?

A: Oh, I'll make my TV show as usual. A chef has to work hard every day!

Q: What about ingredients? If you go shopping in supermarkets, will you find what you need?

A: No, I won't. Next week in London, I'll try to buy lots of fresh, healthy food if I can find some farmers. I know one farmer who grows the best asparagus in the country!

First conditional questions

 We usually make questions in the first conditional by changing the will/won't-clause. The if-clause stays the same.

if-clause	will/won't-clause
If you go shopping in supermarkets,	will you find what you need?

We can also put the will/won't-clause first.

will/won't-clause	if-clause	Short answers
Will you go to sleep	if you get tired?	Yes, I will. / No, I won't.

We don't use contractions in questions or affirmative short answers.

9 Write first conditional questions. Use the words in the same order.

1 Mr Thompson / leave the school / if / he / get a new job

Will Mr Thompson leave the school if he gets a new job?

2 if / it rain / we / go to the park

8 Mum and Dad / buy us presents / we be good ✓

Will _____

Ryan Tommy's a really good skateboarder!

Maddy Yes, he is. I think he might win the competition!

Martin He could become a famous sportsman one day.

May, might and could

 May, might and could are modal verbs. We use them to talk about things that are possible now or in the future.

He might win! He could become a famous sportsman.

There is no important difference between the use of these three modals.

It may rain. = It might rain. = It could rain.

We don't need to add an 's' to the third person form of modal verbs. We use them like this:

Affirmative

modal verb + base form

It might rain.

Negative

modal verb + not + base form

It might not rain.

We can also use may, might and could with the first conditional to talk about things that are possible in the future. If the first action happens, the second action is possible.

If you do lots of running, you could win the race.

Use will and won't about to talk about things that will be true in the future. If the first action happens, the second action will happen.

If you do lots of running, you will be very healthy.

1 Read the text and circle the modal verbs.

Hi! My name's Sally Megson. I'm 10 and I go to school, and my hobbies are drawing and painting. I think I'm quite good at art, and next year I may study art at a special art school. The school is a long way from my home so I might have to take the bus to get there. I could be better at art if I had more time to practise, and my art teacher says I may win an award for my drawings when I'm older. I might not win it this year, but things could be different next year!

2 Match situations 1–8 with modal verb sentences a–h.

- 1 e I feel ill.
- 2 _____ It's cold.
- 3 _____ Olly wants to be more healthy.
- 4 _____ They're doing a lot of homework.
- 5 _____ The team's lost every game this year.

Next year ...

Footballers have to work hard!

Ahmed plays football in England. Duncan Brown asked him some questions.

D: Ahmed, you've been playing football in England for five years. Did you have to work hard to get there?

A: Yes, I did! It was very hard. I had to practise every day.

D: Do you still have to practise every day?

A: I don't have to play every day, but I have to stay healthy.

D: Yes, footballers have to be very strong. Do you have to eat special food?

A: I didn't have to eat special food when I was younger, but I do now. We have to eat lots of good, healthy food because we have to be strong and fast.

Have to

 We use have to + base form to talk about something someone must do.
We have to eat healthy food. I had to practise every day.

We use subject + did/do + not + have to + base form to talk about something that isn't or wasn't necessary.

I don't have to play every day. I didn't have to eat special food when I was younger.

We make questions from do/did + subject + have to + base form. Short answers are in the same tense as the question.

*Do you have to eat special food? Yes, we do. / No, we don't.

*Did you have to work hard to get there? Yes, I did. / No, I didn't.

Jamie: Today I met an architect. He was rebuilding an old house, and I helped him. Here's a photo.

Henry: Great photo! But it isn't easy to build a house, is it?

Jamie: No, it isn't! We were building this house with the same things that people used thousands of years ago. It was hard work, but it's a nice house, isn't it?

Henry: Yes, it is. It's quite simple, but it looks just like a stone age house, doesn't it? We can see how people used to live, can't we?

Jamie: Yes, we can. And this one is a big house, isn't it? It's like a house that an important person used to live in. In those days, the important people lived in big houses. Most houses were smaller than this one.

Henry: Wow, what a great experience!

The house

Question tags

Question tags are short questions at the end of sentences. We often use them to check that the person we are speaking to agrees with us or to check that we are right.

If the sentence is affirmative, we use a negative question tag.

*It's a nice house, isn't it?

If the sentence is negative, we use an affirmative question tag.

*It isn't a nice house, is it?

The verb we use in the question tag depends on the verb used in the sentence. Most verbs use do.

*Most people live in bigger houses, don't they?

If the main verb is be or a modal verb, we repeat it in the question tag.

*This is a big house, isn't it?

*We can see how people used to live, can't we?

The question tag for I'm is aren't I?

*I'm a good player, aren't I?

There is always a comma before the question tag. We usually use contractions in the negative form.

*You're very excited, aren't you?

9 Circle the correct answer.

- 1 You liked visiting the museum, didn't you / don't you?

The present simple passive

In English we usually put the thing we want to talk about (the subject) at the beginning of the sentence. We use the passive if we don't know who or what is doing an action or if it isn't important who or what is doing it.

This is an active sentence.

They're making a film!

This is a passive sentence.

Lots of films are made in London.

We can also use the present simple form of the passive to talk about things which are generally true.

French is spoken here.

Our clothes are made from more modern material.

We make the present simple passive with am/is/are (not) + past participle.

The past participle for regular verbs is the same as the past simple form. The past participle for irregular verbs is often different from the past simple form. Look at page 96 for a table of irregular verbs.

1 Complete the table with the correct form of the irregular verbs.
